BRASS KNUCKLES WIN THUG THREE YEARS' SENTENCE

Judges Show No Mercy to Vicious Carriers of Deadly Weapons-Heavy Bail for 1.00 More Offenders Arraigned.

While picked squads of detectives are scouring the foreign quarters, working under the direct orders of Commissioner Bingham and picking up all the men they find armed, the judicial officers of the greater city are showing evidence of their intention to co-operate with the police in breaking up the vicious practise of carrying deadly weapons.

To-day in General Sessions Judge Rosalsky gave the heavy sentence of three years in Sing Sing to a negro who had been originally arrested for disorderly conduct. The name of the man is John Keen. His offense was carrying a pair of brass knuckles. The fact that he pleaded guilty did not serve to mitigate the severity of his sentence.

Meanwhile Assistant District-Attorney Garvan is at work strengthening the prosecution for the next trial of Stanford White's slayer. Al though it seems reasonably certain that the case cannot be reached before November, Mr. Garvan has made considerable progress already. Within the last forty-eight hours he has found two new witnesses, whose testimony, he believes, will be of great value to the State in demolishing Thaw's secondary plea of self-defense. In the person of a third man he thinks he has discovered a man whose statements will wreck the claim that Thaw was wildly insane at the monient when he killed White. The third witness is named Rainous, | prepared to say that they could
